Article

Imagine drinking coffee while six alpacas walk around your table! In northern Serbia, a new cafe lets visitors enjoy drinks with these friendly animals. The owner, Zoran Ostojin, got the idea after visiting a similar cafe in Slovakia. He wanted people in Serbia to meet alpacas, which come from South America.

Visitors can feed them carrots, lettuce and apples, but they must follow some rules. For example, they must not walk up behind the animals. Each alpaca has its own personality. One black alpaca, Ljubica, is often grumpy, while the smallest alpaca, Snezana, leads the group.

Quiz

1. What animal can you see in the cafe?
2. Who is the owner of the cafe?
3. Where did the owner get the idea for the cafe?
4. What do visitors feed the alpacas?

Conversation

A: Wow, look at all the llamas!

B: They're not llamas, they're alpacas!

A: Uh... okay. Can we feed them now?

B: Yes, but be careful. Don't walk behind them.

A: Alright. Is it going to bite my hand?

B: Give it a carrot and you'll find out!
